

-----
Title: Magical Doors

Author: Toren Smythe's Notes
-----

*The following seems to be a brief documentation of a bizzare magical stone face in a shack of Britain*

-----
...It (Refering obviously to the face) seems to belch forth, continuously, bursts of odd, magical fire. Its use may be near, perhaps it may be shut off. It may even have been constructed to ward off invaders from the home [although that nary worked]. Cear may have some currious thoughts on this subject.

Futher Documentation by Cear Dallben.

The device found is a magical doorway with a customizable password with so many allowed syllables. These were constructed by Mages in Ilshenar and played great role in the rediscovering of our Lenmir Antinmolas
The Password is Bauble.

See Also: Lenmir/Tuning fork